Description

YESA acted as Team Leader in this Strategic Planning Project for the Professional Services Branch of CIDA. The project aimed at (a) operationalizing the concept of sustainable development in a form usable by the CIDA branches to which the Professional Services Branch provides advice; (b) increasing the awareness among the scientists and engineers in the Branch of the need for cross-sectoral integration in the entire project cycle; and (c) developing and implementing management tools to ensure the integration of a sustainable development framework in CIDA's programs and projects.

Using actual CIDA projects, YESA organized workshops for CIDA technical staff to discuss specific challenges around intersectoral integration in project design.
